

ABSTRACT

A serving tray stand includes two frames pivotably coupled at a pivot point located on a common axis. The frames may be substantially the same size and coupled offset from each other, or differently sized and coupled one inside the other. Also included are two cross bars, each attached to one of the frames below its pivot point. The cross bars are connected to each other by at least one restraining strap.